

Newspaper Distribution Contractor Position Available

Student sought to support The New York Times Newspaper Readership program at the University of Pittsburgh-Greensburg, Monday through Friday. Pick up The New York Times newspapers in the early morning from the drop location and deliver them to racks on campus before the first class begins. Count and record the leftover papers from the previous day and dispose of the old newspapers however the school decides. This is an independent contractor position, and compensation is based on the number of papers handled.
